AUSTRALIA

Infrastructure industries account for almost 10% of GDP

The construction industry generated $118.1 billion in economic activity in FY20

Road infrastructure is expected to grow by 4.7% by 2022

A pipeline of mega infrastructure projects

Australia is a vast country. And we're growing.

Our population is set to reach almost 40 million by 2055, which is why we're investing A$110 billion and accelerating a range of mega projects focusing on intelligent transport, advanced communications, future cities, critical water infrastructure, tourism, warehousing and supply chains.

Four cities in the global top ten most liveable

Around three-quarters of all Australians live in our 21 largest cities and these generate around 80% of GDP. That's why we're committed to building new infrastructure and redeveloping existing built environments.

Major road, rail and regional projects underway:

Australian Government Funded transport Infrastructure projects, as at the 2021-22 budget. States, territories and government business enterprises are largely responsible for infrastructure delivery. Other levels of government also invest billions across Australia every year.
